Told at Its 50th Annual Commencement
—John E. Parsons Presides.

Cooper Union held its fiftieth annual commencement exercises last evening and the great hall of the institute was filled. President John E. Parsons and others of the trustees, including R. Fulton Cutting, Edward R. Hewitt and George L. Rives, were on the platform. Mr. Hewitt as treasurer stated the revenue for the year as $155,005.48 and the expenditures as $152,983.14. Extraordinary receipts of the.year of $100,000 in a bequest by D. Willis James and $10,889.68 in a by D. Willis James and $10,889.68 in a bonus dividend of the Northern Pacific were added to the endowment. Mr. Parsons said that two or three months ago he had had the gratification of being in that hall on an occasion he was not likely to forget. It was filled almost exclusively by schoolgirls from the high schools of the city who wanted to present a portrait to President McGowan. The presiding officer of that meeting was a young girl apparently 14 or 15 years old. "And I can conceive of no better mode of presiding over a public meeting than was hers." said Mr.

Parsons. He found in it a splendid testimonial to the American system of edu-

monial to the American system of cation.

"How glorious to be young!" he exclaimed. "They were here because they were young! I am here because I am old. In my long life no compliment ever came to me greater than Mr. Cooper's invitation to me, a young lawyer, to become one-of the trustees of this institution fifty wears ago. Only the founder's daughter, years ago. Only the founder's daughter, Mrs. Hewitt, and I survive of those concerned on that occasion.

"She cannot be with us in body this evening, but her thoughts are here, and she has presented a new and beautiful medal to be given for the first time tonight and always hereafter, and I hope that those who receive it this evening will show it to their neighbors, so that all present may see its beauty and realize its significance.

THEODOR BARTH DEAD. Noted German Publicist Who Was a Good

Friend of America. Special Cable Desputch to THE SUN. BERLIN, June S .- Dr. Theodor Barth, x-member of the Reichstag, one of the leaders of the German Radical party From the Steps While President Eva and editor of Die Nation, died at Baden-Baden last night.

Theodor Barth was one of America's best friends in Germany and one of Gerto fall yesterday morning a hundred many's most progressive liberal-radical girls all over the city said such awful leaders. His personality, his ability and things about the weather man that he his schievements attracted many friends promptly changed his mind and brought on both sides of the water. He had long out the sun. It is a good thing he did been in his country's public life and had or the Barnard seniors could never have written for German, French and English publications on public matters. His celebrated their Ivy Day.

The first part of the programme views were so broad that some of his purchase a marble ciborium of San Stefano in Fiano (Rome), about 1150; a bronze statuette by Paul W. Bartlett and also bronze statuettes of a queen and her subjects by Henry Linder and a Snarling Jaguar by Arthur Putnam.

Dr. Barth heid that the greatest of American leaders and American institutions were the best models for the German democracy, and by Miss Olga Rilke, who handed down all the senior precedents to 1910. Miss countrymen temperately and candidly. He lost his Reichstag seat at the took place on the college steps, in the opponents at home charged him with Eva vom Baur, the class president, presented to the class of 1911 the "Odd Fellast election because he decided to yield lows" banner, which bears the numerals his own sure district to a friend, he himself running in a doubtful one.

Dr. Barth was born at Duderstadts Hanover, on July 16, 1849. He inherited a large fortune from his father, an East Indian planter. He got his education at the Gymnasium Andrianum at Hildesheim and at Heidelberg, Leipzig and Berlin. He studied law at Berlin and was Berlin. He studied law at Berlin and was admitted to the bar. He practised in Bremen and for several years was syndie of the Bremen Chamber of Commerce. He served also as bank commissioner of the Reichsbank and as general secretary of the Deutsche Gesellschaft zus Rettung Schiffbrüchiger. In the committee of the Bundesrath which in 1879 prepared the German protective tariff he represented the cities of Bremen, Hamburg and Lubeck. He always strongly opposed Bismarck's protective policy.

He entered the Reichstag in 1881 from Gotha and from then on was an active defender of liberalism. He held strongly defender of liberalism. He held strongly to the responsibility of the Ministry to Parliament. He opposed extravagant expenditures of money and the nation's energy in naval and military expansion and advocated the "one man, one vote" principle. He was defeated in Gotha in 1884, but returned to the Reichstag in 1885 at a bye-election in Hirschberg, Silesia, and represented that constituency until and represented that constituency until 1898, when he was defeated, to return again in 1890 from Wittenberg-Schweinitz, epresenting that constituency until 1903. From 1890 until 1903 he was a member of the Berlin City Council and from 1898 till 1903 was a member of the Prussian House of Representatives from Kiel. He founded Die Nation, a German weekly. in 1883, and it lived until 1907 as a high class review. He was an honorary mem-ber of the Cobden Club and often at tended meetings of the Interparliamentary Union in London, Rome or Berne. He believed in arbitration of international Oblinary Notes.

The Rev. Dr. William T. Dixon, the best known negro minister in Brooklyn, who had been pastor of the Concord Baptist Church in Duffield street since 1883, died yesterday morning at his home, 108 Adelphi street, in his seventy-sixth year. He was born in New York city and educated in the public schools in Brooklyn. He taught school for several years before being licensed to preach, and his first and only pastorate was in the Brooklyn church, which had been organized for fifteen years before he took charge. His pastorate was successful throughout, and the church now has a congregation of over 1,000. He served as president of the New England Haptist convention for fourteen years and was corresponding secretary and moderator of the Long Island Baptist Association. He was a trustee and vice-president of the James Hyde Young died at his home, 71 East Ninety-sixth street, Wednesday of pneumonia. He was born in 1825 on Fulton street. As a young man he entered the firm of Young, Smith & Co., silversmiths, founded by his father. Henry Young, Many years ago he retired from active husiness. He married Sophie Douglass, daughter of George Douglass, an old time commission merchant. For a number of years he had been identified with the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church and was prominent in Sunday school work. Two sisters are living, Mrs. Henry M. Barnes and Mrs. Henry S. Leavitt, and four children, Mrs. Gaylond S. White, Miss Elizabeth D. Young, Henry Young and the Rev. George D. Young of Owego. The funeral will be held this morning at 10 o'clock from the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church.

Joseph H. Hewettson, who had worked for all present may see its beauty and realize its significance.

Mr. Parsons drew attention to the obligations of the institute to the Cooper and Hewitt families, who had added their contributions until they had brought the original endowment of $1,081,000 up to $1,228,000, while other additions to the endowment made the total assets of the institution now $3,979,295.51.

When the city had turned over for the institute's use the old Tompkins Market building it had been thought that $40,000 or $50,000 would suffice to put the building or $50,000 would suffice to put the building in repair. It had been found, however, that it would have to be rebuilt. The trustees were therefore now confronted with the problem of how to raise the money to erect a building there and then how to support it. "Can we not start a fund," he said, "for this purpose and so a mable ourselves to turn in at that new building the $3,000 or 4,000 applicants for a damission for whom we are now unable to provide?"

This new American story with its background of Southern mill life is one of the notable novels of 1909.

"If you are going to read only one new novel this summer let it be 'Red Horse Hill,' " says Edwin Markham in the New York American.

Hildegarde Hawthorne in the June Bookman says "Red Horse Hill" possesses "a vibrant quality that seizes upon the reader and will not let him go. The plot keeps the reader eager for developments and the characters swaken his sympathy."
